Old Time Advice to Travelers.
Edward Leigh's "Hints For Travelers" was published at the end of the sixteenth century. Only those who speak Latin should travel, he says, and every one should be well grounded in the true religion. "In the true religion," he says, "the traveler should be well grounded in the true religion. Travelers should know their own country before being allowed to leave it. Before his voyage the traveler should make his peace with God, receive the Lord's supper, satisfy his creditors if he be in debt, pray earnestly to God to prosper him on his voyage and to keep him from danger, and he should make his last will and wisely order all his affairs, since many that go abroad return not home."

The Word "London."
What is the derivation of the word "London"? The usually accepted one is the Celtic "Llyn-Din," or lake city, referring to the historical fact that the city was built on a river that overflowed at full tide and half surrounded it. Other philologists have derived it from "lawn" (full) and "dyn" (man), others again from "lon" (a plain) and "dun" (a hill). But the derivation "Lunden," or "grove city," seems more probable than most of these. The name occurs in wooded parts of Scandinavia to this day.

The Reigning Princess.
Every girl who has married and moved to another town learns in course of time how it feels to be a monarch who is deprived of his kingdom. She is a princess before marriage and has the front room upstairs. She marries, moves away, her sister next in years becomes the reigning monarch, and when the married woman returns home on a visit some years later she finds herself relegated to a back bedroom, with her sister, the princess, on a throne in the front room. -Atchison Globe.

The Queer Part.
"Mary," said a Kansas City (Kan.) man to his wife recently, "I had a queer dream last night. I dreamed you had a pair of wings. St. Peter had just given you and I was trying to fit them on you. Wasn't it queer that your wings didn't fit you?" "Yes," she replied, "but that wasn't the queerest part of it." "What was?" "The fact that you were there," she replied. -Kansas City Times.

Emphatically Satisfactory.
Medical Examiner - Suppose you should have a patient with some disease which you knew nothing about. What would you do? Student - Charge him $5 for the examination and then send him to you.

Effect of a Full Stomach.
Give a man all he wants to eat and drink and he will find it easy enough to preach to others upon the duty of abstinence. -Boston Transcript.

He who first praises a book becomingly is next in merit to the author. -Gandor.

Children's Falls.
If a child is injured or stunned by a fall or a blow take him at once to the open air. Lay him flat on his back, the head slightly higher than the body. Put cold water or ice about the head and prepare a hot mustard bath for the feet. If the child remains in a stupor it may be necessary to apply warm water to the body. The same treatment should be given to an adult, though it can be more heroic.

The Hands.
The hands need moisture, and the skin must be fed. The hands also need exercise, not exercise with certain fingers nor with certain muscles, but regular exercise for the whole hand. Let the hands be soaked daily in a warm, rich, soapy water, and let them be treated to a paste nightly, and they will retain their beauty, even through the roughest work.

Dangerous Door Knobs.
A dirty door handle is an obvious source of sanitary principles. Constant contact with the hand means contamination sooner or later. It is conceivable that a dirty door handle would convey disease, and there is thus the reason why door handles should be kept as clean as possible. -London Lancet.

Ribbons.
Ribbons may be freshened, if not too much soiled, by sponging with weak ammonia water and hanging for a few minutes in the fresh air. They should then be put between pieces of white tissue paper and ironed with irons as hot as can be used without scorching.

Glass Dishes.
Once in awhile put the glass sauce dishes and the tumblers into a warm suds and with a new nailbrush give them a scrubbing. This takes the dust and greasy look off them, and after they are rinsed in hot water and dried they sparkle almost like cut glass.

Poison In the House.
It is an excellent plan to keep poisons in fluted bottles so as to be able to recognize them in the dark by the form of the bottle. -But, whatever you do, refrain from placing bottles containing poison among those containing tonics and medicines.

To clean cork carpet wash all over twice a week with skim milk or polish with beeswax and turpentine as you would a stained floor. The latter method darkens the cork and gives it a rich appearance.

The daughter of today has no choice against her mother, says a social scribe. Woman no longer practices the art of growing old gracefully. She prefers to remain young.

Pine salve acts like a poultice. Best thing in the world for boils, burns, cracked hands, tetter, etc. Sold by Stone & Mercer.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE NEWS

CLEVER PLAY IT IS REALLY

Every day we hear about great "Broadway" successes in New York and that thoroughfare has become the Mecca of the theatrical business. If a play is a success on Broadway, it points to almost certain success on the road. But there are points of New York, off Broadway, where occasionally a big hit occurs. "Running for Office" not long ago at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, the home of many great successes in the past, was in the nature of a triumph and all New York flocked to the down town district to see and be a witness of a success off Broadway. "Running for Office" was the second setting which George M. Cohan had given to himself and the members of his famous family, and for three months the play ran to the utmost capacity of the theatre, a tremendous capacity of the theatre a tremendous box office showing each night to attest its popularity.

Sam H. Harris is presenting this clever play with a strong metropolitan cast, which easily surpasses the musical comedy companies sent on tour. They use the original production which was highly praised when seen in New York during its long run there. The costumes are all new, effective and picturesque. The story of the play has a political campaign for its central motive, with its attendant comedy and entertaining episodes. It will be seen here at the Grand opera house, Tuesday, Oct. 3, 1905.

DONNELLY & HATFIELD'S BIG MINSTRELS

Donnelly & Hatfield's Minstrels will appear at the Grand Opera House, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

The show opens with the time-honored burnt cork semi-circle for so long known as the first part of minstrelsy. It shows minstrels in black face and white face and goes under the title of "The Evolution of Minstrelsy." The comedians are embodied in the "burnt corks" while the "whites" are the songsters; the former representing the up-to-date minstrels, the latter that body of traveling musicians who flourished in Homer's day and set the events of history to music.

The performance closes with an after-piece, a burlesque on the tent show. It is a big spectacular act, unique throughout.

The company of forty people give a parade in the morning and attract considerable attention.

COHN'S GREAT SUCCESS

"Running for Office," the George M. Cohan musical comedy, which he and Sam H. Harris are presenting this season has a record of unbroken popularity to attest its merits. A long successful run in New York followed by a lengthy tour of the principal cities of the United States, to capacity houses, argues that all classes of theatregoers find it worth seeing. The music and lyrics are popular and the lines clever. This season, a company of artists has been selected to keep this play on the high plane of its triumph. The chorus, which is a large one, has been characterized as one of beauty and talent. Manager Sam H. Harris promises the original production which has called forth the praise of critics everywhere.

The rivalry in "Running For Office," while in miniature is quite as interesting and better as that of the real factions whose wordy battles are full of contradictions and entirely one-sided.

John Tiger, a Vermont state politician, has other troubles that politician to make his life miserable. He has concealed from his newly-wedded wife that he has a daughter, just as she has made no sign that she has a grown up son, and the complication arising from this secret in their lives, is the plot upon which George M. Cohan has worked in "Running For Office." At the Grand opera house, Tuesday, Oct. 3.

BIG MINSTREL COMING

One of the features of a minstrel show is its monologue. The monologist nowadays is always selected from the front ranks of minstrelsy, for this mode of expressing comedy is considered as important as the end men, gags and jokes of the end men. Tommy Donnelly, for many years associated with the Al G. Fiedler Greater Minstrels as the leading comedian, will give the monologue with the Donnelly & Hatfield Magnificent Minstrels. He has appeared in the calcium light of minstrelsy for over two decades and is considered one of the best negro character delineators in the business. His natural wit, good nature and knowledge of human character enable him to give an embodiment that conforms to his humorous line of talk. Lee Edmunds and Frank Wingfield other comedians of note will also be seen among the forces of this popular organization, at the Grand opera house, Wednesday, Oct. 4.
